

Independent Village Development Pattern in Industrial Community 4.0

Nur Khois (IAIN Tulungagung, Indonesia) and Nuril Mufidah (Universitas Islam Negeri Maulana Malik Ibrahim Malang, Indonesia)

Source Title: International Journal of Social Ecology and Sustainable Development \(IJSESD\) 13(1)

Copyright: © 2022 | Pages: 12

DOI: 10.4018/IJSESD.287887

OnDemand PDF Download:	$33.75
✔ Available	List Price: $37.50
Current Special Offers ▼

Abstract

The purpose of this study to find out about independent village development programs and activities; analyze the efficiency and effectiveness of programs and independent village development activities. Data was collected through in-depth interview techniques, observation, and documentation and focus group discussion. The results; independent village development programs and activities include; efficient and accountable government management; Village economic development, activities of joint business groups, village-owned enterprises, and construction of village souvenir centers; Integrated environmental management, its activities are to build a waste charity center, promoting environmentally friendly tree planting; Character development of the community, its activities are supporting the Al-Qur'an educational institutions, supporting the activities of youth/community/religious groups, establishing centers for community learning activities and community reading parks. independent village development programs and activities are quite efficient and effective.

Article Preview

Top

Introduction

Community independence needs to continue to be cultivated, as part of achieving national development goals, namely the formation of a just, prosperous and prosperous society (Bradshaw, 2007). Welfare is characterized by the release of society from poverty (Carter & Barrett, 2006), (Ghiglino & Sorger, 2002). Prosperity and prosperity are not only the burden of the central government, but the community also has an essential role in development. Therefore, leadership capabilities are needed in order to grow and develop the culture of society through the political role of leadership (Bunqe, 1981). Community